Individual and couple therapy with Allison A Professional Profile

Allison is very confident in her ability to make real changes in people’s lives. She is dedicated, kind and compassionate about the therapy she offers. She is quiet and unassuming in her approach but very warm and nurturing, you will feel safe in her hands from the minute you meet her. She is also down to earth, self-contained and supportive in her approach to life and work. Her aim is to build a strong therapeutic relationship which she believes is vital to the therapeutic process and the success of the therapy.

We feel very pleased that Allison joined our team. As with all the counsellors and couple counsellors working with Nightingale, she has that special personality that sets her aside from other counsellors. She is a truly valued member of our team.

Allison is always keen to learn new skills and is committed to bring the best service she can to her clients using continuous professional development to add to her skill set on a very regular basis. She is as effective with couples as she is with individuals working with adults only.

As a couple counsellor Allison’s training with a large couple counselling organisation and, more recently, received mentoring and additional training on the Nightingale marriage counselling model. We pride ourselves on the positive effect of our couple counselling training delivered by Florence who brings her 25 years' experience to the couple counsellors

Clients who have worked with Allison have provided invaluable positive feedback, which reflects the work Allison does.

TESTIMONIALS

“Allison has helped turn my life around after a serious of events that knocked my self-confidence at work. I was unhappy, stuck in a rut & in need of support. Allison was aware of my way of thinking from the outset. Her very supportive, but also challenging, approach was exactly what I needed.

I have benefited greatly from how she held me to account & challenged my negative thought patterns that had set in.

I can genuinely say working with Allison has reset how I think about things so much for the better, with less self-doubt which has resulted in real benefits not only in my career but also in my personal life. I would not hesitate to recommend Allison.”

“My partner and I cannot thank Allison enough for the incredible support she provided us. We were facing some challenging situations, and Allison’s compassionate, insightful guidance helped us work through them together. Her ability to create a safe and understanding environment allowed us to communicate more openly and honestly than ever before. Thanks to her expertise, we’ve strengthened our relationship and haven’t looked back since. I highly recommend Allison to anyone seeking a skilled and caring couple counsellor.”

“The support my partner and I have received through going to see Allison has enabled us to rebuild security and communication in our relationship. My partner and I started session to work out difficult issues in our relationship after a pivotal point occurred. Our sessions with Allison have helped us understand each other and issues we need to work on as a couple and within ourselves. She has created a secure space where we feel comfortable to express how we feel and work on difficult subjects. Since starting with Allison our relationship has been a lot better as we have focused on the root cause of our problems and built new foundations that help us thrive together. We are so grateful we found Allison at nightingale and would highly recommend to anyone needing support.”
